

Masthead Logo

The Iowa Review

Volume 27

Issue 2 Summer/Fall

Article 18

1997

[Dogs' Breath Steams, Cold Air Catches in Your Throat]

Eugenius Ališanka

H. L. Hix

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Ališanka, Eugenius and H. L. Hix. "[Dogs' Breath Steams, Cold Air Catches in Your Throat]." The Iowa Review 27.2 (1997): 82-82. Web.

Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.4886>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

Eugenius Ališanka

★      ★      ★

dogs' breath steams, cold air catches in your throat when you step outside, glad to find the familiar morning: bony earth, skilled calligraphy of trees, even the smell, this could be the landscape of the soul, oikumene in november winds, something more than the revelation of non-existence, incarnate in the rhetoric of nature, it could be,

every autumn I give you a frozen cluster of ashberries: infertile years have taught me to save, as if I could leave after death preserved words, but every autumn

I recite an incantation to exorcise hunger, every autumn I forget history, why should you need it, when the sun rises portending another short day

SOLSTICE

neither to leave nor to stay, no shore, this place has no beginning, the shorter the day, the clearer the man, neither absolved nor condemned, without the rust of frost, in the dark glade the gesture like lightning reveals rocks: folios, engravings of night, but there is more to survive, memory purges the life